

NORTHWEST FUCHSIA SOCIETY ENDOWMENT SCHOLARSHIP

The Northwest Fuchsia Society was established to further the interest and promote the study of Fuchsias. The Fuchsia is an ornamental flower that is colored in shades of red, blue, purple, pink, orange, as well as white. The color fuchsia, a vivid, reddish-purple, was named for the brilliant color of the flower. Nearly all the members of the species are native to Central and South America. The society encourages the propagation and cross-fertilization of various species. The fuchsia is a common flower used in urban horticulture and the members of the Society wish to educate people to the aesthetic value and ornamental use of the flower.

The Northwest Fuchsia Society is pleased to make available this horticultural scholarship. The NWFS Endowment Scholarship for horticulture provides a way to assist deserving students to continue their education in horticulture.
